Degree Path: B.S. in Human Services - Counseling

College of Behavioral Sciences and Community Services

OVERVIEW

This degree is designed for individuals seeking to study a general, broad-based discipline with a major in one of the human services professions. Graduates of the program will be qualified to work in entry-level human service career fields related to one of the human service academic specializations. This degree will also provide preparation for graduate study in the student's chosen area of human services.

An outstanding aspect of the degree is its accommodation of a significant degree of flexibility for transfer students and others who come to Nelson and wish to continue their professional development in a human service profession without losing a significant amount of transfer credit.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

This degree prepares graduates for vocational positions in the marketplace across various private and public human service agencies. This may include mental health facilities, social service organizations, nonprofit faith-based facilities, government agencies, and private companies.

The primary mission of the Human Services degree is to expand the professional development of students in their chosen specialization area with knowledge and skills from the areas of general studies, Bible and theology, church ministry, and the areas of human services, which are Counseling, Psychology, Social Work, or Criminal Justice. This degree provides most of the prerequisites for graduate work in the selected Human Service profession.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

- Our faculty are more than just scholars—they are Spirit-filled believers with decades of experience in their field of expertise, which allows them to bring real-world experiences into the classroom along with the integration of a biblical perspective interfaced with the foundations, concepts, and basic skills in the Human Services field.
- Many of our alumni have gained entrance into various graduate programs and have become outstanding professionals in their respective fields in Human Services.
